

Operating Model & AI Clarity Day

A focused working session for leaders with pressing questions on operating model design and AI direction.

WHO THIS IS FOR

This session is designed for three types of leader:

- You have an AI programme starting and a set of questions about building for sustained value that you have not had the right conversation about yet.
- You have been doing the operating model thinking and want someone to look at it with you before you commit to a direction.
- You have already done some work on operating model and AI and want an independent perspective on where you stand.
- You keep hearing that AI changes everything about how organisations need to work, and you are not sure what that actually means for yours or where to begin.

WHAT YOU LEAVE WITH

Clarity on your most urgent questions. A clear sense of where to focus, what to address first, and what to stop second-guessing. You leave knowing what to do next and with the confidence to act on it.

Within two working days, you receive an Advisory Summary capturing the key threads and recommendations from the session.

HOW IT WORKS

BEFORE

A short exchange to surface and prioritise your questions so the day is focused from the start.

THE DAY

An open, guided conversation across your priorities: operating model design, AI readiness, structural decisions, execution challenges.

AFTER

Advisory Summary delivered within two working days, capturing key threads and recommendations.

The format can be a single day with morning and afternoon sessions, or two half days. Can be delivered in person or remotely.

Not a workshop. Not a presentation. A working session between peers.

INVESTMENT

£2,000 + VAT

To explore whether a Clarity Day is the right next step, get in touch directly.